The Office of Veterans Administration often unfairly denies service connection for a veteran's disability which results in a lengthy Appeals Process which can be overwhelming and taxing for anyone not familiar with the process. Then, after all of that, and after the Office of Veterans Administration does finally establish benefits for the Veteran, the Office of Veterans Administration assigns a rating or effective date that is less than the Veteran deserves. The sole purpose for this division is for the Veteran to have a Paralegal, who happens to be a service veteran himself, that has experience in cutting through the VA's red tape and help the Veteran win their case. We feel this process will help the Veteran save time trying to figure out the VA Disability Form, save money on Attorney Fees, and ultimately get the Veteran the benefits they need and have already earned.

Most Veterans Disability Claims are denied at first, or assigned a lower rating by the VA, because the VA failed to provide the Veteran with a Medical Examination, the VA unfairly denied a service connection to the disability, the VA assigned the wrong rating, the VA assigned the wrong effective date, and/or the VA ignored additional benefits which the Veteran is entitled.

What We Do:

- Draft & File the Veteran's Application Non-Service-Connected Forms
- Medical Records Requests
    - Draft Medical Authorizations
    - Draft Correspondence to Client for Signature Authorization
    - Draft Correspondence to Medical Facility enclosing the Authorization and Requesting copies of the Medical Records
- Request Military Records
- Draft VA Applications and other Appropriate Documents

Medical Evidence:
Syndicate Legal & Financial will gather all Client medical evidence needed to prove mental and physical impairments. We often work with doctors, psychologists, and vocational experts to help provide evidence to prove your disabilities are service connected.

Backpay:
When you win your claim (or appeal) you may be owed backpay. This is the money you should have been receiving all along. The Office of Veterans Administration backpay checks can be a significant amount of money. Many veterans find their back pay goes back years! Beware: The Veterans Administration often calculates back pay wrong.

Effective Dates
What many Veterans don't know is how to accurately determine their effective date. The VA is often wrong when it issues an effective date. Many Veterans may not even realize they are missing possibly years of backpay. We spend lots of time focusing on effective dates. Many times, we have found Veterans' effective dates to have been incorrectly given by the VA.
