We understand the benefits of preserving amicable relationships between current & former family members (as well as current & former business associates). When possible, we offer clients "Collaborative Mediation Services."

For example, in a Divorce or other Family Law proceeding, the Collaborative Mediation Process offers the parties a Multi-Disciplinary approach to resolving disputes, all without the time and costs associated with litigation. In this type of mediation, we sit down together with all parties and attempt to resolve disputes in either the privacy of our offices, or through a video conference.

The same methodology works for Business Disputes as well.

When needed, Neutral Financial Experts and/or Attorney's or Former Judges who Specialize(d) in a Certain Aspect of Law that is in Dispute will join the Collaborative Mediation Session to discuss certain aspects of the law to the disputing parties. This Collaborative Mediation process works as a unit to help the Disputing Parties move forward based upon common goals and aspirations.

Collaborative Mediation Process is often preferable thanks to several inherent circumstances:

- Confidentiality
- Greater informality
- Less costly
- Less time-consuming than traditional litigation
